'Make fixing a criminal offence'

Says Dravid, adding that education and counselling at junior level is important

PH NEW DELHI

Former Indian captain Rahul Dravid on Wednesday called for making match-fixing and spot-fixing a criminal offence since only a strong law can serve as a huge deterrent to potential fixers.

Dravid suggested a two-pronged approach to curb the menace of match-fixing and spot-fixing, saying making these illegal activities a criminal offence and educating cricketers at the junior level should be the first step. "My personal belief is that education and counselling at a junior level is really important," Dravid said in an interview to ESPNcricinfo.com around three months after three of his Rajasthan Royals' team mates were arrested for alleged spot-fixing in the sixth edition of the IPL.

SC refuses interim relief but agrees to hear BCCI's plea

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Wednesday refused to grant interim stay on Bombay High Court verdict declaring as illegal and unconstitutional the BCCI's two-member probe panel set up to look into spot-fixing and betting charges in the IPL tournament.

A bench of justices A K Patil and J S Khehar, however, agreed to hear Board of Control for Cricket in India's (BCCI) petition challenging the high court's judgement and issued notice on it.

The bench asked Cricket Association of Bihar, an onlooker plea the high court had delivered to submit its reply on or before 16 days. The BCCI's plea was filed on Friday. The bench also asked the high court to file its response on or before two weeks and posted the matter for hearing on August 29.

Dravid said such scandals can diminish the reverence and respect that cricketers enjoy from their fans and if it happens it would be very sad thing for the sport. "I think cricketers in India - right from the time I can remember, growing up - were always idolised. I think they still are and will be. But apart from being celebrities there's a huge amount of respect associated with being cricketers and a certain amount of reverence and honour associated with representing India. "In people's eyes, apart from other celebrities in India, I think for sportsmen there's a certain amount of regard. Whether it's because there's more money now, it's not seen as an amateur thing anymore, and for a variety of reasons things like this don't help - which we see on the front pages of the newspapers and not on the back.

Dravid said he went through a plethora of emotions after the IPL scandal broke out in May. "There is not really one emotion at a time like that. You go between anger, sadness, disappointment, you feel bad," he said.

"It's not just about me personally... There are a lot of people in the team and a lot of people who have done work behind the scenes... Obviously you do feel bad because you know some of these players at a personal level. You've spent a lot of time with them in the dressing room. But you also feel that for the lot of other people as well, these things put in a lot of effort to try and make this a success. And you can sense a lot of people do feel let down. I guess it's a natural feeling."
